The American Soldier.

At a banquet in Washington last week, in honor of the foreign representatives attending the dedication of the New York Chamber of Commerce, General Young of our army, responded to the toast "Our Soldiers in the Philippines," and among the many good things he said:

"No one was more anxious to have the soldiers behave properly than were our generals in the field," he said. "The defamers of our patriotic soldiers were never numerous, but for a time were very noisy, and some of our good people believed there was some truth in their statements. There were a few good people that sincerely believed that a voyage across the Pacific actually had turned their brothers and fathers, fathers and uncles into blood-thirsty savages. All of the army's defamers were densely ignorant of what constitutes the laws of war, the nature of the warfare waged by the Filipino and the conditions that prevailed in any war, civilized or otherwise. I do not recall a single case of a good soldier of experience, acquainted with the conditions that exist in the Philippines, that has publicly criticized adversely the conduct of our soldiers in the Philippines."

"The election is now passed and those who expected to gain political advantage by assailing the army have failed in their object, and the results have buried that question forever as a political one, and I feel now that I can speak the truth about our soldiers without being accused of having political bias or of defending them for the political effect. Taking into consideration the circumstances surrounding them, our soldiers in the Philippines behaved remarkably well—better than any other nation expected or that we had any reasonable hope to expect. War is a game and a very dangerous one, and the rules of conduct should be left to those that are experienced in the game."

A HUMANE ARMY.

"I say that the American army is the most humane that ever waged war and I could bear out my assertion by the Filipinos and Chinese, and even the Spanish prisoners."

He said that war at best was cruel and that the humanity that is talked of in time of peace has no place in it. "To carry on war," said General Young, "disguise it as we may, is to be cruel, is to kill and burn and kill and again kill and burn."

If the word humane could be applied to war he would define it as one fast, furious and bloody thing from beginning to end. He added "If it has no been for the intense desire of the American people to carry on an easy, persuasive war with the Filipinos, and the good faith in which the American officers acted to carry out that desire, the Filipino war would have ended in much less time. You feel confident that our little Japen friends would have stopped the pattering of the barefoot little brown brothers through the jungles in a very short time, and that the aggressive army of our German friends would not have viewed with equanimity the burying alive of their friends as did our soldiers in obedience to the home sentiment. I am satisfied that the coming census of the Philippine islands will have on the list a great many more people and houses than there would have been if the German army had had control the past four years. I am not an advocate of war either for conquest or revenge nor as a means of making either good Indians or Filipinos, but when war has been decided on by our nation, I agree with the German emperor's sentiments and believe that the American army should leave such an impression that future generations would know we been there."

A Cheap Hard Earth Road.

Among our callers today was Mr. D. Ward King, of Maitland, who is sent out by the state to demonstrate the possibility of having better roads at less expense than the kind we now have. Mr. King shows a photograph of the road through his farm that is as smooth and well graded as a city speedway. This excellent road is the result of six years experiment by Mr. King and its success is proven not only by the picture but by the fact that the state thinks it of enough importance to send him out over the state. Mr. King sees many improvements in our city since he was last here some year ago. He says that the Boulevard from the Seminary to the fair grounds could be made a perfect speedway at very slight cost by the method he has been using.

We will be glad to know that Mr. King has made a start here for we have the land and the boom and nothing seems to stand in our way so seriously as the condition of our roads.

Mr. King promises us nice, smooth roads four days out of five (barring the time it is actually raining) if his suggestions are followed.—Mexico Ledger.

Rev. Irl R. Hicks 1903 Almanac.

To say that this splendid work of science and art is finer and better than ever, is stating it mildly. The demand for it is far beyond all previous years. To say that such results, reaching through thirty years, are not based upon sound sense and usefulness, is an insult to the intelligence of the millions. Prof. Hicks, through this great Almanac, and his famous family and scientific journal, Word and Works, is doing a work for the whole people not approached by any other man or publication. A fair test will prove this to any reasonable person. Added to the most luminous course in astronomy for 1903, forecasts of storms and weather are given, as never before, for every day in the year, all charmingly illustrated with nearly two hundred engravings. The price of single Almanac, including postage and mailing, is Thirty Cents. Word and Works with the Almanac is $1.00 a year. Write to Word and Works Publishing Co., 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo., and prove to yourself their great value.

Poetry—beautiful thoughts in perfect verse.

Critical Articles—Strong, vigorous, fearless, by masters of analysis, well formed on their subject—or they don't write about them.

New? Yes, at least not old, but seasoned in that its contributors are ripe in experience, and in their vigor of thought. Seasoned also in that it lacks not flavor—is never flat.

Though but fifty cents a year the subscription is limited to persons of rather more than average intelligence—since others fail to see the delicacy of detail and shrink from the boldness of the foreground of this masterpiece of publication.

Pay Your Debts.

Having sold my drug business, it is my desire to have all those indebted to me to call at once and settle their accounts either by cash or bankable note. I hope I may not be compelled to resort to severe measures.

Some musicians are very high-toned. Some invalid pension claims are believed to be truly invalid.

Gov. Van Sant has already shaken hands with 400,000 men who claim the credit for having elected him. Wonder if the governor is good at mathematics? The South is improving. A St. Louis mob tried to lynch a motorman recently. Well, now that's getting a little better, certainly.

Missouri's Thanksgiving.

Gov. Dockery issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation. We omit the formal head and tail:

In obedience to a beautiful and appropriate custom, the President of the United States has set apart Thursday, November 27, 1902, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. Every Missourian should observe the day. The past year has been one of unusual prosperity. Our great commonwealth has made wonderful progress in the development of its diversified and affluent resources. It is, therefore, peculiarly appropriate that our people should return thanks to Almighty God for the blessings so lavishly bestowed upon them in all the varied avocations of life. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the state of Missouri. Done at the city of Jefferson this 6th day of November, 1902.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, Almighty God in His infinite wisdom, has removed from this earth to the land beyond, our beloved brother, E. E. Whitmarsh, Therefore be it

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon our minutes and also published in THE HOLY COUNTY SENTINEL.

There were several, guests of the hotel, present, among the number were Dr. Quigley and wife, and six years ago, on the evening of the same date, they too were married, so they celebrated their wedding anniversary by attending a wedding. The following day they dined with Elder Bickel, a former neighbor of the groom; then left for a visit with friends in Mound City, and will then go to the home of Mr. Hill near Tarkio.

The Woman's Union held its Thanksgiving program at the home of Mrs. Dr. S. W. Aiken, Monday evening, November 17, 1902, with Mrs. Aiken as leader. —The Chrysanthemum society will have a business meeting Saturday, November 22, at 2:30 p. m., at the residence of Mrs. Emma Moore. All members are requested to be present, as this will be the last meeting of this year.

Millions for Education.

Francis A. Palmer, the New York banker who died on Saturday, left $5,000,000 to be divided among educational institutions. This is another illustration of the interest wealthy Americans are taking in the higher education of the American people. The interest is not confined to the scholarly or to those associated with philanthropic or educational work. Bankers, merchants, manufacturers and business men generally are among the most generous givers.

Only a few months ago Mrs. Philip D. Armour and her son, J. Ogden Armour, gave $1,250,000 to the Armour institute. Mrs. Emmons Blain gave $1,000,000 to the school of education of the University of Chicago. Dr. D. K. Pearsons has given $2,500,000 to different colleges and schools.

Mrs. Leland Stanford has given in all $30,000,000 to the Leland Stanford university in California. In the last two years Mr. Carnegie has given $2,000,000

And right now is the time when thin soled shoes pile up doctor's bills. It may be easier to wait until snow and cold actually compel you to put a good, solid sole between your feet and Mother Earth—but it is easier to pay the doctor and THEN by the shoes?

James Watson.

A brother of the late Judge Samuel Watson and Harmon C. Watson died at Richmond, Ind., on the 14th day of November, 1902. He was born near Richmond, April 1, 1821. He was the seventh in a family of thirteen children, four of whom, Samuel, Henry, Robert and Harmon, are buried here. One sister, Rebecca Haas, the youngest of the family, still lives near Richmond.

James Watson followed carpentering during the early part of his life and lived here a number of years. He put up Kunkel's mill house about 1847, and did a large amount of other work in his line in this vicinity. He returned to Indiana and engaged in farming for a number of years, and having a competency retired to the city leaving the farm in the hands of his son. He had one son and three daughters, all of whom with his wife, survive him.

Mr. Watson while living here occupied a small log house near the woolen factory on his brother's farm, and during the California emigration, George Raper, his wife's brother, came there with a party on their way to the gold fields. He took the smallpox and died. This event caused great excitement among the settlers, and it was a long time before people regained courage enough to take their wool to the factory.

Robert Watson, a brother of the deceased, died here in 1843. His grave was lost and no person now can tell where his body lies.

—Uncle Jacob Rayhill, of Hickory town-hip, has been entertaining a brother from Pana, Ill., the past week.
